pondering the strange tide in human affairs which causes us to change our style of dress, our taste in literature, and even our mode of government, from one generation to another—yet ever repeating ourselves—William Feather writing in the Imperial Type Metal magazine calls to attention the case of Anthony Trollope, British novelist who prospered about the time of Dickens and Thackeray and Eliot.

Days of Ethiopian Empire Believed to Be Numbered

Capture of Dessye Opens Heart of Country to the Italians

BRITISH ARE FIRM
France, However, Threatens to Break Away From League Sanctions

GENEVA, Switzerland. (AP)—An Italian spokesman said Wednesday that the first delegation to the League of Nations conference on peace in Africa had arrived without instructions from Premier Mussolini on settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war.

The spokesman said the delegation had come to the conciliatory session under supervision of the League Committee of 13 to agree upon a procedure for starting peace negotiations.

Dessye Has Fallen

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia. (AP)—The Ethiopian government issued a formal denial Wednesday that Dessye had been occupied by Italian troops.

"Days Are Numbered"

ROME, Italy. (Copyright Associated Press)—Italy's advancing northern army achieved its major immediate objective Wednesday, the capture of Dessye, the government announced officially, opening the heart of Ethiopia to the conquering Fascist forces.

Marshal Badoglio, commander-in-chief of the Italian armies in East Africa, reporting the occupation of the former field headquarters of Emperor Selassie, said in his communiqué: "Our troops entered Dessye this morning."

And the correspondent of Stefani, Italian news agency, commented: "The days of the Ethiopian empire are numbered."

France, Britain at Odds
LONDON, Eng. (AP)—A clash between England and France over sanctions against Italy at Geneva Friday if peace talks fail, appeared probable Tuesday night.

It was said Foreign Secretary Eden was instructed by the British cabinet to take a strong stand against the League's "abandonment" of Ethiopia should current peace negotiations fail.

Instead of agreeing to an expected French move for lifting the sanctions, Eden will defend Ethiopia.

A conference between Eden and Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin indicated that the government is prepared to support and may even demand further economic and financial sanctions against Italy.

Military sanctions probably will be held in abeyance for the time being because France is opposed to them.

The British are not convinced that Premier Mussolini has smashed all Ethiopian resistance. It was said that just as the British underestimated the strength of the Italians six months ago, perhaps now the Italians are overestimating the value of their recent military successes.

British sources believe Mussolini will not seriously enter peace proposals.

Knox Smashes Borah in Illinois Vote

Publisher Chicago Daily News Wins Presidential Test

Tabulation Wednesday Shows Him Leading by About 77,000 Votes

ROOSEVELT AHEAD
Democratic Strength Exceeds That of Knox and Borah Combined

CHICAGO. (AP)—Colonel Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, contesting with Senator William Borah, of Idaho, for the Republican presidential preference vote in Illinois, and Governor Henry Horner, seeking return to office on the Democratic ticket, stood apparently victorious Wednesday on the mountain of ballots cast Tuesday in one of the state's most dramatic primaries.

Little attempt was made in the first returns to calculate the presidential vote given President Roosevelt, who was unopposed in his party's lists. The huge Democratic turnout indicated that it would be satisfactory to the party chieftains who sought a big total vote with the Knox-Borah total were for the president.

In the few instances where comparison was available, the president's vote greatly exceeded both.

Republicans pointed out that the contest between Gov. Henry Horner and Dr. Herman N. Bunsen of Chicago for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination had stirred up greater interest in that party's primary ticket.

Bunsen, backed by the powerful Chicago Democratic machine led by Mayor Edward J. Kelly and National Committeeman Patrick Nash, took a big lead in Cook county, but Horner was showing great strength downstate.

Senator Lewis Wins

For the Democratic senatorial nomination, J. Hamilton Lewis appeared to be experiencing no trouble from his two opponents, Ruth McNamara and Clarence H. Kavanaugh. Neither was widely known in the state. The senator made no campaign.

Early returns from the Republican senatorial contest sent Otis F. Glenn far ahead of ex-Congressman William E. Hull of Peoria. Glenn, a former United States senator from Illinois, was holding a three-to-one advantage.

Townsend Leading

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—An upset victory in the Nebraska Democratic race for the U. S. senatorial nomination was in sight Wednesday for former Congressman Terry Carpenter, Townsend old-age pension plan advocate.

With 1,417 of the 2,025 precincts tabulated, he led J. C. Gavigley, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, by 4,000 votes.

State-U.S. Pensions Ready Next Week

Estimated Average Is $9 to $10 Per Month for Blind and Aged

LITTLE ROCK.—The federal government's first allotment of funds to match state relief expenditures for aged and blind persons and dependent children, amounting to approximately $240,000 for the three-month period ending June 30, is expected here early next week. C. H. Andrews, state welfare commissioner, said Wednesday.

Approval of the Social Security Board in Washington was given to a request for aid presented there by Mr. Andrews and Henry C. Armstrong of Fort Smith, chairman of the state Public Welfare Commission, March 31.

14,091 families certified as eligible on March 1 until necessary classification of all relief clients into the four groups—old age pensions, blind persons, relief for dependent children and relief for unemployable—has been completed, Mr. Andrews said.

This work has been under way by county public welfare boards for the past 10 days. Unemployables will be considered those remaining on relief rolls and approved for aid after deduction of the number eligible for old age and blind pensions and dependent children's relief.

The estimated average monthly grant, state and federal money combined, is $9 to $10, but several grades of pension payments will be set up to provide for persons able to secure partial assistance elsewhere.

Impeachment Case Is Given to Senate

Fate of U. S. Judge Halsted L. Ritter Rests With Upper Chamber

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The impeachment case of Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter of Florida was given to the senate to decide Tuesday.

Because so many senators wanted to attend the opening baseball game, the senate was in session only two hours and the verdict was delayed.

Seven separate roll calls will be taken in open session after deliberations in secret are completed. A two-thirds majority of any one of the votes will be required for conviction, which would mean removal from office for the judge.

Judge Ritter, a former Denver lawyer, is charged with conspiracy to bring a receivership suit in his own court, granting exorbitant fees in the suit to a former law partner, A. L. Rankin, "corruptly" receiving part of the fees, practicing law while on the bench, and evading income taxes.

Baccalaureate to Be Held at 6:15 Sunday in Saenger

11 o'clock Morning Hour Abandoned at Request of Ministers

ROGERS TO SPEAK
First Baptist Pastor Will Address 59 Graduates Hope High School

Hope High School's commencement season will be ushered in Sunday with the delivery of the baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, pastor of First Baptist church.

This year's baccalaureate service will be held at 6:15 o'clock Sunday night at the Saenger theater, departing from the traditional practice of holding it at 11 o'clock in the morning.

The Hope School Board voted to make the change on the petition of a committee from the Hempstead County Ministerial Alliance. It was represented by the committee, the Revs. Wallace R. Rogers, Fred Harrison, Thomas Brewster and Hollis A. Purdie, that the abandonment of separate church services on baccalaureate morning for the union meeting was having a bad effect on church organization work.

Services in the various churches of Hope, therefore, will be held as usual this coming Sunday morning, and the baccalaureate sermon will be preached at 6:15 p. m. in the Saenger.

The baccalaureate Sunday program was announced by Superintendent Beryl Henry as follows:

Processional, invocation, prayer, scripture.

Anthem: "Lo! A Voice From Heaven" (Bartanski), Choral club.

Announcements and Offertory. Violin solo, Miss Helen McRae.

Anthem: "Rejoice and Praise" (Gannon), Choral club.

Sermon, the Rev. Mr. Rogers. Benediction and seven-fold amen (after the benediction the audience is requested to be seated).

Recessional.

There are 59 members in this year's graduating class. Diplomas will be awarded on commencement night, Thursday, April 23, at the high school auditorium, when Dr. Stuart R. Oglesby, a Hope native, now pastor of Central Presbyterian church of Atlanta, Ga., will make the annual address.

Hope Senior Play to Be Given Friday

"Happy Birthday" at High School Auditorium Matinee, Night

"Happy Birthday," a comedy-drama of three acts, will be presented by the senior class of Hope High School Friday, April 17, in the high school auditorium.

The matinee performance will be at 2:30 p. m., and the night show at 8. The play was written by Ray Hodges.

The setting of the play starts in a cottage occupied by Jerome Carter, an artist, and Presley Howard.

Carter is in love with a girl whose father is bitterly opposed to artists. Carter has invited his fiancée, her father, and her companion to spend the week-end with him.

Carter owes rent on the cottage and is in danger of being thrown out. Carter's companion, Howard, insists upon being reimbursed for money loaned to Carter which caused other situations to arise.

These are some of the problems facing Carter. This is the beginning of a riotous plot. Situations pile one on top of each other with such rapidity that it seems impossible to extricate the hero from a tough spot.

"Happy Birthday" presents a clever and delightful story.

Three Whites and Negro Arrested in Robberies, Holdup

Fulton Fisherman Jailed for Hijacking of Fulton Toll Bridge

CLOTHING IS FOUND

McDowell Store Loot Is Recovered—Fingerprints Catch Negro

Solution of a series of crimes in Hempstead county was believed near Wednesday with the detention of three white men and a negro.

A man booked as John Cunningham, fisherman living four miles north of Fulton, was held in jail at Hope as suspect in the Fulton bridge holdup of the night of March 20.

Oscar Powell and Tommy Watson, both of Hope, were held in jail at Washington in connection with the Jett Williams liquor store robbery of last week.

Charles Foster, 16-year-old negro of Hope, was arrested in Texarkana late Tuesday. Confronted with fingerprints, he admitted, officers said, entering the McDowell Clothing store here last week and robbing it of approximately $30 in merchandise.

Facts Murder

The Foster negro was transferred to a Little Rock jail to face a Pulaski county murder charge in the death of Lee Daniels, Little Rock negro, who was shot to death last month.

Cunningham, held for the Fulton bridge robbery, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by State Ranger J. H. Sewell on a charge of "robbery with firearms."

He was taken to jail at Washington questioned by Sheriff Jim Bearden and Prosecuting Attorney Ned Stevens, who said that Cunningham was "a bad character."

He was then taken to Texarkana in an attempt at identification by A. W. Stevens and Miss Myrtle Lee Gilbert, who were kidnaped by the bandit and forced to drive about a mile east of the bridge where they were released unharmed.

The bandit then dashed into the woods and escaped. At Texarkana it was said by officers that Stevens tentatively identified Cunningham.

Cunningham was later taken before J. O. Pool, operator of the Fulton toll bridge, the night of the robbery, and was identified by him as the man who was then lodged in the city jail where he was to be questioned further Wednesday afternoon by Sheriff Bearden.

Approximately $30 was taken in the robbery.

Buried Liquor Found

Sheriff Bearden announced that seven pints of whisky believed stolen from the Jett Williams store had been recovered. The sheriff said that the liquor was found buried near the home of Oscar Powell, two miles south of Hope.

Several empty containers also have been recovered which bore signs of dirt, leading officers to believe that it had contained liquor that had been buried and then dug up.

The sheriff also said that he had information that liquor was being sold in Hope at 25 cents a pint, a few days following the Williams robbery.

He said that information about Powell and Watson would be submitted before the special session of the Hempstead grand jury next Monday.

Fingerprints taken from a window of the McDowell Clothing store by Policeman Clarence Baker linked the Foster negro with the robbery.

Three suits of clothing were found in possession of Foster, identified by Floyd McDowell, owner of the store, as stolen loot.

The Foster negro admitted entering the store. He said that he had a negro accomplice, but did not know his name or his whereabouts.

Texarkana officers said that Foster admitted shooting Lee Daniels, Little Rock negro, but claimed that it was an accident—that he was shooting at another negro and that Daniels walked into the path of the bullet.

Foster was taken to Little Rock Tuesday night to face a murder charge.

The Truth About Diet

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Some strange superstitions prevail regarding the value of canned vegetables as compared with fresh vegetables.

Some people still believe that it is dangerous to eat food that has been left in cans, standing in the refrigerator, after a portion of the material has been used. There is no reason for this notion. Most canned products are sterilized and safer left in the can than kept in any other manner.

Vegetables most commonly canned are tomatoes, corn, and peas. The manner of packing nowadays is carefully studied of conserve as far as possible all useful substances. In preparing vegetables for invalids and children's diets, the substances usually are finely divided or sieved.

The U. S. Food and Drugs law of 1906 provides definite standards for canned goods, and the Food and Drugs division is very watchful over the sale of spoiled food or food not properly branded.

Vegetables most commonly used in dried form are beans and peas. The newest process is quick freezing, and seems to be successful in the cases of such vegetables as beans, corn, mushrooms, peas, and spinach.

As a contribution to the diet, each vegetable must be studied for its special virtues. The proteins of the leaf vegetables, such as lettuce and spinach, are believed to be more nutritive

Today's Health Question

Q.—How should one squeeze a pimple without causing infection? Should an antiseptic be used?

A.—A pimple is a localized collection of pus in the skin. To make certain that the infection does not spread, apply an antiseptic substance to the skin over and around the pimple before the pus is liberated, and again apply a suitable antiseptic afterward. Use sterilized gauze to take up the pus as it comes out of the pimple, to prevent its spread.

than those of beans and peas. However, the soy bean seems to contain all essential proteins in amounts sufficient to support normal growth.

In most vegetables, the carbohydrate is in the form of starch. Some vegetables contain 5 per cent or more of sugar. The laxative value of vegetables depends on the amount of fiber they contain.

Vegetables are especially important because of the minerals which they supply. I have already mentioned, at various times in this series, the amount of calcium, iron, phosphorus, magnesium, copper, and other minerals supplied by vegetables.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

If the mere word, "gypsy," has for you a connotation of unspeakable romance and a breath of joyous freedom, you will get a great deal of enjoyment out of Edgum Pincheon's new novel, "Until I Find" (Knopf, $2.50). If, on the other hand, gypsies leave you rather cold, you are apt to find the book slightly overwritten and tedious.

Being a soft touch for stories about gypsies, I liked the book ever so much. It tells about an English lad who grows up on the edge of the New Forest, in Hampshire, a strain of gypsy blood flowing in his own British veins, with itinerant gypsies for his playmates.

Under these circumstances the lad grows up intolerant of the restraints of ordered society. When his family moves to the adjacent Isle of Wight, this trait takes command and leads him to adventure.

The adventure is really mild enough; a rebellion against school and parental discipline which leads him to run away to a gypsy camp. But before he gets through, he is riding a stolen horse up and down and across the island, fleeing from the police and the king's troopers, sleeping in the open, and having the gay and exciting sort of time his spirit loves.

The book's close finds him seceding from society outright, shipping off for Spain with a raggle-taggle gang of roving horse traders, and getting an enormous kick out of it.

As I say, unless you go for gypsies this may seem a trifle silly to you. But the book is alive with color and movement, with love of the open fields and empty horizons. An exhilarating breeze blows through its pages.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Mrs. Smith looked in the telephone book for a number and an address. "Stone Street—I never heard of it. And the exchange doesn't mean a thing. 'Winterhouse.' Would that be across the river, Charles, or out in the Dairy Dale district?"

"Search me. Why don't you call up and ask?"

"Can't Mrs. Miller isn't home. They're all away. But I have to take the curtain material and leave it next door so she can get it Thursday. We leave Wednesday."

Roger said, "Winterhouse." That's away out at Shelby Park. Then he resumed his book, but added, as he peeled a caramel, "Stone Street's the one that crosses Main at the bank."

"Don't forget to have the car gone over for the trip. Charles Get Allen's to send for it at noon, will you?"

Information at Tongue's Tip

"Allen's sold out. Some other guy has the place now, and he's no good. I think it's all over now, too."

"How do you know?"

"I'll tell Hanson's to get it," promised Charles. "And I'll send a man to drain the furnace pipes."

"Gee, you don't need a man. I'll show you how," Roger offered.

"You? What do you know about this special system we had put in?"

"Gosh, I could put it in myself. Anyhow, didn't I watch them?"

"So did I, but all I know is the thermostat on the wall there. And I think it's all over now, too."

"Don't you worry. I'll fix the works. Just say when."

"Everything has to be turned off. Charles. Electricity, gas—everything. Do you know where the—what do you call them—"

"Switches for electricity? Valves for gas-pipes? I guess that's what you mean."

"Come on down to the cellar. Pop. I'll show you the whole shooting-mad. Did you know we had three fuse-boxes? One's away back under the stairs."

Still, Parents Know Best!

In ten minutes Charles came upstairs a wiser man. Then he began to look at road maps. It was Roger who told him that three highways met two blocks beyond the railroad bridge and he'd better take the one to the left as the main one was torn up for several miles. "I know because Chuck delivers out that way sometimes and I go with him." Which was all news to Mrs. Smith.

Suddenly she began to think about leaving this twelve-year-old. I'll worry about you every second we're gone," she said. "If it wasn't for school. Be sure you do everything Aunt Jane tells you, dear."

"Oh, I'm all right. I'll get along fine."

"But, little boy, you're funny. They're not like girls. They're sort of helpless. You really are just a baby, dear. No, please don't eat any more candy."

"No, you've had enough," seconded Charles. "And put your book down and get your lessons now."

Roger stuck out his lip. "Aw, why?"

"Because," said Charles with dignity, "we know best."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Toby Ryan, 19, is a photographic model, posing for photographs used in advertisements.

Known at first, she is soon in high demand in the studios, particularly after she is chosen as "The Hillyer Soap Girl."

Toby shares an apartment with HARRIET HOPE, another model, engaged to marry CLYDE SABIN, whom Toby distrusts.

Wendy TIM JAMIESON shows Toby with attention for a time, and then seems to forget her. Toby's oldest friend is BILL HILLIER, who works for an advertising agency. She is fond of him, but has never thought of him romantically.

JAY HILLIER, president of the Hillyer company, sees Toby posing for some photographs. He takes her to dinner and later she has frequent engagements with him.

Clyde Sabin marries a wealthy widow and breaks the news to Harriet in a letter. It is a fearful shock, and Toby worries over the way Harriet is taking it. She and Harriet go to the apartment for Harriet.

As Toby turns her key in the door and opens it, Bill cries "Don't go in that room!"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXI

BILL crossed the room and flung up a window. Toby felt the choking fumes in her throat. She groped for the electric switch, found it.

The room was just as it had been, but there was no sign of Harriet.

"Where is she?" Toby cried. "Oh, Bill, where is she?"

The kitchenette of the apartment was little more than a cupboard. In fact, it had been one once. Bill pulled the door back and disappeared inside. The stinging of the gas was sharper with the door open.

Toby cried, "Bill!" and ran forward.

There he was, with Harriet in his arms. "Raise the other windows," he directed. "Do you know where to get a doctor?"

He put Harriet on the davenport and they did everything they could think of to revive her, but she was still unconscious when the doctor arrived. He made arrangements immediately to take her to a hospital.

Toby's eyes sought the doctor's, voicing the question her lips did not dare attempt.

"We'll do all we can for her," the doctor promised.

"But, Doctor—"

"No time to waste now," he said brusquely. "The sooner we get her to the hospital, the better. That's all I can tell you."

Later Bill sat with Toby in the dreary hospital waiting room. Her eyes were red-rimmed, the handkerchief she twisted in her hand a limp, moist ball. "What time is it now?" Toby asked.

He told her.

"Surely it can't be much longer! They ought to know by this time. Why doesn't someone come and tell us, Bill? Do you think they've forgotten?"

"They'll tell us, Toby, as soon as they know. I don't think it will be long now."

"But it's been a long time already. Oh, Bill, it's all my fault! I shouldn't have left her alone tonight. I knew how she felt. If I'd stayed with her, as I should have, it wouldn't have happened."

"You mustn't say that, Toby."

It was another 20 minutes before a nurse came and told them, "Miss Harriet is resting quietly now."

"Can I see her?" Toby asked.

The nurse shook her head. "Not tonight. She's very weak and the doctor doesn't want her to be disturbed. I imagine that you'll be able to see her tomorrow morning."

Toby was there next morning. She found a pale and wan-faced Harriet lying back against the pillows of the hospital bed. Harriet said, "I'm sorry, Toby. I guess I've made everybody a lot of trouble."

"Darling, it's all right now. You had us horribly frightened last night, but now everything's all right. The doctor says you'll be yourself in just a few days."

"Yes, I know."

The few words seemed to have exhausted Harriet. Toby lingered a few moments, and then a nurse said that it was time for her to leave.

From then on, her daily routine included as much time at the hospital as she could spend there. Bill came with her once, and another evening she arrived to find Marty Hiatt sitting beside Harriet's bed. There were flowers in baskets and vases about the room—so many that some of them were on the floor.

Harriet's illness had been reported as the result of an accident. She had many friends and all were solicitous about her recovery.

"Why, the place looks like a florist's shop!" Toby exclaimed.

Harriet smiled. "It does, doesn't it? It's lovely of people to send them, but I feel selfish with so many flowers when some of the patients haven't any at all. I've asked the nurse to take part of mine some of the other rooms."

Marty nodded toward Harriet. "She looks fine, doesn't she? All she needs is to get some color in her cheeks."

She did look better, although she was still weak. "The doctor had ordered that she should remain at the hospital a few days longer."

Toby was cheerful at the hospital, but privately she was worried. Since the day Harriet had received Clyde Sabin's letter she had not mentioned him. Did she still feel that life without Clyde was not worth while? That was why she had done this dreadful thing, of course. There couldn't be any other reason.

If Harriet would only talk about it! But she didn't. She was sweetly appreciative of everything that was done for her. She lay back against her pillows like a pale shadow of herself. The nerve and sparkle, the gaiety that everyone associated with Harriet was gone.

Only one person besides Toby knew the truth about the "accident" of the escaped gas—Bill. Toby discussed the problem with him.

"What worries me," she confessed, "is what may happen after she leaves the hospital and comes home. Everybody knows she was to be married. It will be awfully hard for her to go back to work."

"She ought to go away some place for a while."

"I think so, too," Toby said, "but she doesn't seem to be interested. She isn't interested in anything any more. That's the trouble. Bill, do you think she'd try—"

He understood what she meant before the words were out. "Not a chance," he said. "Don't you know, Toby, that once anyone has come as close to the finish as Harriet did, they never make a second try? They realize, I guess, just how much life means."

"I hope you're right."

"Of course I am. I can show you figures to prove it."

It was Marty Hiatt, eventually, who made the suggestion that was carried out. Harriet was back at the apartment, still pale, still with the far-away expression on her face, still silent about her plans for the future.

MARTY dropped in one evening after work. "I've got an idea," he announced. "You can't go back to work for a while, Harriet. At least, you shouldn't. The country's what you need. I have an aunt who lives in a little town up in the state. She's the finest cook in the world and there's nothing she likes so much as to have someone around the can fuss over and take care of."

"She'd be tickled to death to have you come up for a week or two, or as long as you want to stay. You see, the old girl gets sort of lonesome. Likes to have someone around who can talk to. I've been promising for months to run up and see her. If you'll come along, we can drive up next Sunday."

Harriet said it was awfully nice of Marty, but she couldn't impose on him.

"Impose on her? Why you'll be doing her a favor. Honestly—"

"It would be grand for you, Harriet," Toby urged. "You know the doctor said you shouldn't go to work right away."

Two days later a letter arrived from Mrs. Abigail Dinwiddie—a letter that revealed Mrs. Dinwiddie to be exactly the sort of person Harriet had described her as.

"It was sweet of her to write me, wasn't it?" Harriet said. "But, of course, I can't go."

Nevertheless, when Sunday morning arrived, Marty Hiatt halted his car before the apartment and presently was helping Harriet in and stowing her suitcase into the rear.

"Toby found it lonely after Harriet was gone. The days had been so full that she had had little time to herself. Now she had more than she knew what to do with. For no reason at all, calls from the studio dropped off."

"They'll pick up again," Sally, at the Model League office, assured her.

Toby hoped they would. Jay Hillier was out of town. Bill seemed to be busy at his job; at any rate, she didn't hear from him. Then the weather turned hot. It was June, but the sun beat down on the pavements as though it were August, and what breeze there was only added to the discomfort. People said they "felt it" because the heat had come so suddenly.

Toby, finding the apartment unbearable, set off one afternoon for a movie. The theater, at least, would be cool.

She reached the avenue and halted, waiting for the traffic light to change. A young man in a white suit was also waiting there. He turned and said, "Why—Gorgeous!"

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD—It's spring in Flickertown. Producers who haven't been on speaking terms are lunching together again. Song writers are peering through open windows and making maudlin rhymes about birds and bees and blossoms. Mary Pickford has bought a new pair of gardening gloves.

It's spring in Hollywood, and the studio fashion designers are unrolling bolts of light, bright fabrics. Warner Boxer swears he's taking sulphur and molasses. You can detect a note of honest sympathy in the voices of casting office telephone girls as they drone: "Nothing today, sorry . . . nothing today . . . sorry, nothing today."

Fred MacMurray is shopping for the latest things in trout flies, leaders, and reels. Rochelle Hudson is re-furnishing her house again, and Louis Hayward is taking swimming lessons. Joel McCrea has bought a hundred head of cattle for his ranch; and big rough-and-ready, broken-nosed Victor McLaglen is budding the roses in his garden.

Sam's Coming Up

It's spring in Hollywood, and the poppies have popped out all over the hills. Lewis Stone, Sir Guy Standing, James Cagney, Preston Foster, and Stan Laurel—the yachting fans—are coming nautical magazines and ordering paint and canvas. Mary Boland, Ann Dvorak and Jeanette MacDonald are having their swimming pools reconditioned.

Shop windows are light, with scanty items identified as the season's newest bathing suits. Frances Sage already is nursing a case of sunburn.

Fishing and Golf

Claire Trevor pursues the last vestige of winter in a tour of the western national parks. Merle Oberon is learning how to flick a Royal Coachman across a trout pool.

The new, big car with the top turned down belongs to Herbert Marshall. Katie Hepburn is trying to get her golf game back into the 70's. Eric Rhodes motors far into the hills each day, shopping for a ranch.

Jim Williams, who draws "Out Our Way," has fled the city in a fit of fidgets for his snug little 30,000-acre cow yard in Arizona.

Everybody's Happy

It must be spring; Jack Oakie got married. Bing Crosby and Dixie Lee are hosting the pruning and planting on their Rancho Santa Fe. Fat old gophers and their innumerable progeny are digging up the garden planted by W. C. Fields.

Friends of Wallace Beery are admiring a six-door bus in which he plans to go touring. Toby Wing has a new boy friend.

Waitresses in the studio cafes have blossomed out in crisp, gay new uniforms and flutter their artificial eyelashes outrageously at the extra men. Shirley Temple's white rabbits are anticipating a blessed event. Doux old studio gatekeepers are whistling at their posts; and swallows are nesting in the rafters of the least-used sound stages.

Back to Life

A local fan sent Hugh Herbert a lawn seat fashioned of tree branches. He put it in the garden and the darned thing has taken root!

There's a baseball game every afternoon at the Joe E. Browns.

Dream Ships

I send my dream ships gaily
Out on the mind's broad sea;
O thought-winds, from them kindly
And give them back to me.

And, O winds, speed them onward
Around their circled track,
And, O sea, bear them safely;
And may they nothing lack.

And captain, guide my choosing
That what I ask of Thee
May make a worthy cargo,
As it returns to me.—Selected.

Hard Way Around
SYDNEY, Australia. (AP)—Around the world in 21 days by airplane the "hard way" spanning both the Pacific and the Atlantic, is the ambition of Jim Mollison, flying husband of England's Amy Mollison. He hopes to start in August. From England Mollison plans to hop across Europe, down through India and thence across to Australia. From Brisbane he will head for Los Angeles, including among his ambitious plans a 3,100 mile hop across the Pacific from Suva to Honolulu. A transcontinental hop from Los Angeles to New York and a dash across the Atlantic would bring him back to his starting point.

"Country Doctor" at the Saenger

Quintuplets at Local Theater Wednesday, Thursday and Friday

"The Country Doctor," now at the Saenger theater, proves to be the "blessed event" of the year as it presents the five famous Dionne Quintuplets laughing, crying and stealing your heart in motion picture stars.

It is a story bristling with drama, comedy paths and adventure that presents these universally loved babies in their first feature length picture roles. Jean Hersholt is the hero, as the doctor who dedicates his life to a tooth-and-claw battle against pain and ill in a Canadian fur settlement.

Hindered by official red-tape, sorely in need of a hospital, he antagonizes the heads of his company, loses his position because of the animosity of the company manager. He answers one last call for his services, and to his astonishment brings five tiny babies to the world at one birth.

With a startling suddenness, the doctor finds his position reversed. He is the focus of world interest, he can demand and get everything he wants for his tiny charges. And, in the climax, the man who faced a lonely old age becomes the recipient of highest honors from the government.

Contrasted against the dramatic central plot are the comedy roles of Slim Summerville and John Qualen, and the youthfully tender romance of Michael Whalen and June Lang, all contributing to the story's entertainment power.

Hauptmann Case Disturbs Politics

But Both Democrats, Republicans Are Cautious in New Jersey

By HERBERT PLUMMER
Associated Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—Politicians here say privately that the political aspects of the Bruno Richard Hauptmann case are destined to be sources of bedevilment and embarrassment straight through to the elections in November. They regard it as significant that most New Jersey Democrats have studiously refrained from openly attacking Governor Hoffman personally for his conduct of the case. Also the wariness of the New Jersey members of congress in steering clear of the controversy has been a subject of much private conjecture.

Senator Moore, Democratic governor of New Jersey at the time the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped and found, has been particularly careful to refrain from comment. Republican Senator Barbour and the 10 Republican members of the house, regardless of their personal reactions, refused to be jockeyed into a position either for or against the stand taken by the New Jersey governor.

Republicans Do Investigating
Politicians here seem agreed that the lack of Democratic criticism of Governor Hoffman can be attributed to a thing—fear that the governor might actually uncover evidence in the Hauptmann case which would change the whole complexion of things. It isn't difficult to understand what a bonanza that would be. Despite protestations by Hoffman and others intimately connected with the Hauptmann case that there never has been any political purpose behind their activities, politicians point to the following facts without comment: The Mercer county, New Jersey, grand jury which made a last-minute investigation of the alleged connection of Paul H. Wendel, a disbarred attorney, with the Lindbergh kidnapping, is composed of 12 Republicans, nine Democrats and two men with no party affiliations. The foreman is a Republican and a friend of the governor, who is a Republican.

The prosecutor, whose leadership the jurors elected to disregard, is a Democrat, as is the attorney general. The assistant attorney general, whom the grand jury called upon for legal help, is a Republican. The detective, who obtained the Wendel "confession," is a Republican and a close friend of the governor. The detective who signed the murder complaint on which Wendel was arraigned is a Republican.

Politically Important
The political effects of this bizarre case are of national significance because the state of New Jersey holds a key position in the coming elections. President Roosevelt himself made a gesture toward ending state support for the Democrats when he stopped off recently at Newark to make a speech. In 1934 Governor Hoffman was elected chief executive, although the Democrats elected a senator and four members of the house and in 1932 had swept the state for Mr. Roosevelt. Hoffman's personal political star was in the ascendancy until he entered the Hauptmann case.

Warneke Defeats Dizzy Dean 12-7

The Great Dizzy Falls Before Arkansas in National Opener

ST. LOUIS. (AP)—Sinking Dizzy Dean with a bombardment of base hits, the league-champion Chicago Cubs opened the season here Tuesday with a 12-to-7 victory over the Cardinals.

Lon Warneke of Arkansas pitched smoothly to six innings. The Cards' three runs in the third resulted from a bad break and an infield error.

The Cubs got three runs in the first inning when Demaree hit a home run after Herman had singled and Klein doubled. They stayed in the lead by scoring another run in the third before the Cards counted their three.

Two more runs in the fourth and fifth innings—one of them Demaree's second home run—sent the Cubs ahead again, and they pulled another big scoring spree in the sixth. Herman, Klein and Hartnett battered the fading Dizzy in this inning. Herman hit a double, then Klein and Hartnett drove home runs into the rightfield pavilion.

Bill McGee, who relieved Diz at the start of the seventh, could not stop the Chicago attack. Stan Hack and Bill Jurgas got singles. Hack counted on an infield play, and Jurgas scored on Herman's fifth hit—the home run.

Phillies Beat Bees, 4-1
PHILADELPHIA.—(AP)—Curt Davis held the Boston Bees to four hits as the Phillies defeated them, 4 to 1, before a crowd of 9,000 Tuesday.

The Phillies got all their runs off Danny MacFayden in the fourth when Vergor singled, went to second on Morris' sacrifice and scored on Davis' single. Singles by Allen Watkins' infield out, and Jonny Moore's single scored two more. The final run was scored on Doph Camill's double against the right field fence.

Boston scored in the eighth when a pass to Cuccinello, Lee's single and a hit batsman loaded the bases with one out. Cuccinello scored as Lopez grounded into a double play.

Giants Down Brooklyn
NEW YORK.—(AP)—The Giants defeated the Dodgers, 8 to 5, Tuesday before the largest opening day crowd at the Polo Grounds in at least 10 years. Paid attendance was 55,000, including many celebrities, among them Mayor LaGuardia, Babe Ruth and former Mayor James J. Walker.

What started out to be a pitching duel between Hal Schumacher of the Giants and George Evershaw ended in a slugfest on the part of the Giants, with Mel Ott and Dick Bartoli getting home runs. Ott's tie to the score and Bartoli's to put the Giants in front. Manager Bill Terry of the Giants, on the bench with a bad knee, missed starting his first opening game since 1926. However, he inserted himself as a pinch hitter for Schumacher in the sixth and fouled out.

Earnshaw, after a fine start, failed to hold his advantage. The Giants smashed his offering in the sixth, seventh and eighth.

Bucs Rout Derringer, Win 8-6
CINCINNATI.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates routed Cincinnati's No. 1 pitcher, Paul Derringer, from the box in the third inning Tuesday and won, 8 to 6, before 32,243 fans.

Extra base hits, aided by Red errors, gave the Pirates their victory. All but six of Pittsburgh's 14 hits were doubles and one of the others was a home run by Bud Haffey in the first inning, scoring Paul Waner.

Schoolboy Rowe Opens With Win

Bests Cleveland 3-0 as American League Season Is Opened

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—(AP)—Lynwood Rowe of Arkansas put the Detroit Tigers on the road to their third straight pennant when he pitched the Cleveland Indians into submission before 18,200 fans here Tuesday, 3 to 0. Rowe held the Indians to four hits, issued no passes and allowed no Cleveland runner to reach second base, and fanned six.

Hank Greenberg, 1935 home run champion of the majors, drove in two runs in the first inning with a double. Al Simmons paved the way for Detroit's third run with a double in the sixth.

Mel Harder, ace of the Cleveland pitching staff, was taken out in the sixth after having allowed nine hits.

Senators Beat Yankees
WASHINGTON, D. C.—(AP)—In a pitching duel Tuesday between Louis (Buck) Newsom, right hander of the Senators, and Vernon (Lefty) Gomez of the Yankees, Carl Reynolds' two-bagger in the ninth decided the issue in the Washington's favor, 1 to 0. Cecil Travis, who had singled, scored the game's only run.

President Roosevelt rode into the park in an open limousine, grinned broadly and waved his grey slouch hat at the largest opening-day crowd in capital history—more than 32,000. Mr. Roosevelt threw out the ball that officially marked the start of another big league season after Vice President John Garner, sporting a grey sombrero, President Will Harbridge of the American League, and owner Clark Griffith of the Senators helped raise the flag in center field.

Chicago Shades Browns, 7-6
CHICAGO.—(AP)—The Chicago White Sox defeated the St. Louis Browns 7 to 6 Tuesday before 12,000 fans. There were five doubles, two triples and three home runs. Ed Coleman and Roy Bell hit for the circuit for St. Louis and Tony Fitt for Chicago.

The Browns knocked Johnny Whitehead from the box but were stopped by Babe Phelps. Ivy Andrews was relieved by Earl Caldwell after seven innings.

Red Sox Hit to Win
BOSTON.—(AP)—Boston's Red Sox offset wobbly pitching and ragged fielding Tuesday to gain a 3-to-2 win over the Philadelphia Athletics before a crowd of 28,100.

The A's used four pitchers, who were found for 13 hits, including a triple, double and single by Jimmy Foxx.

Wes Ferrell pitched for the Red Sox. He was in trouble almost every inning.

WITH THE LADIES

By Helen Welshimer

Gazing backward down a dusty corridor to an old brick school that I tried to know, I meet the angular ghosts of a few members of the teaching profession who had "nerve."

Without exception they were too thin. Goodness knows, maybe teaching 40 or 50 squirming little boys and girls in a room built to accommodate 30, may have been the cause of the loss of weight and poise. They were nice people, those teachers, but the exposed nerve ends were too sensitive to endure the torment of chalk squeaking against damp blackboards, giggles, whistles, rubber-band shooting and other 10-year-old nonsense.

There were some other teachers, too, in that building, plump and comfortable, who took the small disorders of the day with brightness. There were a few slim teachers, who retained the ability to laugh without stretching their facial muscles. That isn't the point. Most of the so-called "cross" teachers were thin teachers.

After all, the assertion that fat men and women are good-tempered must have a basis somewhere.

Weight Gauge Only at Start
The refusal of New York authorities to license Rose Freistater, the 150-pound applicant for a teaching position, focused attention on the care with which examining boards select new teachers. They eliminate not only those who are overweight, but those who are underweight. But once a teacher gets her license, she can get too fat or too thin without anything being said about it. Only her pupils are conscious of the effect the change in weight makes in her classroom attitude.

There persists one pertinent memory of a teacher who was so thin that she gave geography and grammar an ethereal air. When a few years later she put on weight, she bought gayer dresses and found herself a beau. The boys and girls in her classes found school less irksome. We, of the earlier generation, had waited until the last bell rang before we slipped into our seats.

This is the stream-line age in which slimmest fosters efficiency, and lamb chops and lettuce have the nicest china at the banquet. Health is a fundamental issue, and if too much flesh is a detriment, certainly those cumbered with excess poundage are not physically capable of presiding over a classroom.

Fat and Thin Not Glorified
It is true the Ziegfelds never glorified the girls who let the hands of the scales go "round and round." He never did much for the ones who stopped them too soon, either. More and more medical science is coming to understand that the regulation of weight has much to do with peace, poise, gaiety and laughter. It is no healthier to be too thin than too fat. Besides, your disposition is apt to pucker at the edges.

Certainly one weight is not so nearly important in the teaching industry as one's capacity for explaining arithmetic and history, for exercising sympathy and tolerance and understanding. Odd, though, how much eas-

Woman Is Leader of Tenement Boys

Nabel Sonas Is Guiding Spirit of Chicago Boys' Clubs, Inc.

Chicago boys living in a crowded tenement neighborhood are looking to a young woman for leadership—and liking it.

The youths, ranging in ages from six to 20, are members of the Lincoln park branch of the Chicago Boys' Clubs, Inc. The girl is 28-year-old Nabel Vera Sonas, who was born and raised on an Iowa farm.

"The boys themselves really haven't given me a moment's worry," she says. "Of course, the job has its problems, but the boys here have treated me with unusual respect and give out of there way to cooperate."

"Before coming here Miss Sonas did similar work in Dubuque, Ia., and although the two cities are unlike in size or environment she says she finds Chicago boys very much like small town youngsters.

"There are problems are somewhat different and their viewpoints are not alike, but in the end they're all working toward the same end—a chance to make good," she says.

The Chicago Boys' Clubs, Inc., is a philanthropic organization with branches in all sections of the city. The Lincoln Park Club, the largest is located in a rambling brick building housing everything from a swimming pool to a Boy Scout club room.

After school the club serves as recreational and educational center of the neighborhood.

Miss Sonas has organized an orchestra and with the aid of teachers supplied by the WPA is offering classes in music. There is instruction in wood work, printing, dramatics, radio building, art and even tap dancing.

While the club is principally for boys its advantages also have been made available to girls and Miss Sonas estimates that from 250 to 300 participate in its activities.

Recommend Spray to Kill Plant Lice

Nicotine Dust Effective, Says Hempstead Demonstration Agent

Plant lice have been taking advantage of the cool, wet spring to take their annual toll in Hempstead county gardens and orchards. The pests must be killed by some contact spray that will cover them or which sends off poisonous fumes, according to Miss Helen Griffin, home demonstration agent.

Nicotine sprays and dusts containing nicotine are commonly used. For small gardens, Claude Woolsey, extension horticulturist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, recommends a teaspoonful of nicotine of sulphate or "Black Leaf 40" to one gallon of water; with a one inch cube of soap, preferably yellow laundry soap, added to the water. The soap should be thoroughly mixed with the water, shaving it into small bits.

Nicotine sulphate may be combined with a dry carrier, such as air-slaked lime, and applied as a dust, or nicotine dust may be bought already prepared. The dust should contain at least one and one-half per cent nicotine.

Lubricating oil emulsion is also recommended by Mr. Woolsey for the control of plant lice. It should be used at the rate of one pint to 4 gallons of water.

In all cases, the horticulturist states, the under side of the leaves must be reached by the spray or dust if effective control is obtained.
